What are Pellets?

Sterile pellets are small implants made with bioidentical hormones like estradiol or testosterone. They're inserted just under the skin during a simple in-office procedure.

Once inserted, the pellet slowly releases hormones into your body over 3 to 6 months, helping to supplement your natural hormone levels.

How It Works:

- Your provider numbs a small area on your hip or abdomen.
- A small incision is made to insert the pellet.
- A bandage is applied, no stitches needed.
- The pellet is closely monitored by your physician to determine your next cycle.
