

Enhancing Sexual Health and Performance

Did you know that regular sexual activity (at least twice per week) can boost your overall health as well as appearance? You should treat your sexual health with the same amount of care you would your skin or body. Don't let low libido, poor lubrication, or painful intercourse keep you from being active and romantic with your partner. When your physician has ruled out hormone deficiencies, illness, infection, or depression, there are other options available.
